

Daily Outlook

GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA

The Nasdaq tumbled 1.6% on Monday, confirming a correction as it was dragged down by Alphabet, Facebook and Amazon.com on fears the companies are the targets of U.S. government antitrust regulators.

While the sell-off in the internet heavyweights was the biggest drag on the Nasdaq, the index has been falling steadily since its May 3 record closing high as investors worried about slowing global growth amid an escalating U.S.-China trade war.

The S&P 500 had a volatile session and ended the day down 0.3 percent, but the Dow Jones Industrial Average ended the session virtually unchanged.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 4.74 points, or 0.02%, to 24,819.78, the S&P 500 lost 7.61 points, or 0.28%, to 2,744.45 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 120.13 points, or 1.61%, to 7,333.02 which was 10.2% lower than its May 3 close.

A correction is defined as a 10 percent drop from the most recent 52-week high.

The benchmark S&P 500 swung in and out of negative territory during the day as investors monitored the latest comments around the U.S. trade battles with both China and Mexico, as well as U.S. President Donald Trump's decision on Friday to end preferential trade treatment for India.

An ISM survey showed U.S. manufacturing growth unexpectedly slowed in May, driving demand for the safety of government bonds. Two-year yields hit their lowest since September 2017 on growing conviction that the Federal Reserve will start cutting interest rates to stave off a recession.

High-profile internet stocks dominated trading, with Facebook Inc closing down 7.5% after the Wall Street Journal reported that the Federal Trade Commission has secured the right to examine how the social media company's practices affect digital competition. The stock was on pace for its biggest one-day drop since July 26.

Alphabet Inc tumbled 6% after sources told Reuters the U.S. Justice Department is preparing an investigation to determine if the Google parent broke antitrust laws. Amazon.com fell 4.6% on a report that the e-commerce giant could be put under the watch of the FTC.

Nikkei

Japanese stocks hit the skids on Monday as investors fretted about the rising risks to global and domestic growth from a potentially protracted and widening tariff war between the United States and its major trading partners.

Index-heavy SoftBank Group Corp tumbled 6.2% after the Wall Street Journal reported that the company's bid to raise a second mega fund has met with a chilly reception from some of the world's biggest money managers.

The Nikkei share average ended 0.9% lower at 20,410.88, the weakest closing level since Feb. 9. In intraday trade, it slumped 1.4% to hit a 4-1/2 month low of 20,305.74.

Modest gains for the yen also battered exporters already under pressure from global trade frictions. The dollar dropped 0.1% at 108.19 yen, after hitting as low as 108.10 during Asian trade, its lowest since Jan. 14.

Shares of Fanuc Corp tumbled 3.3%, Yaskawa Electric declined 1.8%, Tokyo Electron shed 2.1% and Komatsu Ltd fell 1.8%.

A senior Chinese official said on Sunday that the United States cannot use pressure to force a trade deal on China, refusing to be drawn on whether the leaders of the two countries would meet at the G20 summit to bash out an agreement.

China threatened on Friday to unveil an unprecedented hit-list of "unreliable" foreign firms, groups and individuals that harm the interests of Chinese companies, as a slate of retaliatory tariffs on imported U.S. goods.

Kospi

South Korean shares rose more than 1% on Monday as the won's bounce-back eased concerns about possible capital flight, and as investors hunted for bargains on perception that blue chips have been oversold in the wake of weightage changes in MSCI indexes.

The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI index ended up 26.11 points, or 1.28%, at 2,067.85 points.

Foreign capital inflow was prompted by the end of MSCI EM index rebalancing, said Ha In-hwan, an analyst at Meritz Securities. Domestic stocks have been undervalued and the recent fall of the won against the dollar made investors see the major index was relatively cheaper, he added.

Foreigners were net buyers of 291.5 billion won ($246.51 million) worth of shares on the main board.

Shares of Samsung Engineering lost nearly 10% after Saudi Al Toukhi and VISION asked a court to arbitrate in a dispute over the cancellation of Saudi's Yanbu project.

The won was quoted at 1,182.1 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.74% higher than its previous close at 1,190.9, after the currency rose as high as 1,178.6 per dollar.

In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,182.1 per U.S. dollar, up 0.5% from the previous day, while in non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,181.0 per dollar.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ Hong Kong stocks recouped earlier losses to close flat on Monday, aided by telecommunications firms following a report that Beijing will push forward 5G development, although investors remained concerned that escalating trade tensions could increase risks of a global slowdown. The Hang Seng index was unchanged at 26,893.86 points, while the China Enterprises Index gained 0.4%, to 10,430.64 points.

Telecom stocks outperformed on Monday, with the Hang Seng telecommunications index closing up 2.5%, in its best session since Jan. 4.

China's Ministry of Industry and Information Technology (MIIT) will roll out commercial 5G licenses "in the near future", the official Xinhua reported.

China threatened on Friday to unveil an unprecedented hit-list of "unreliable" foreign firms, groups and individuals that harm the interests of Chinese companies.

The United States cannot use pressure to force a trade deal on China, a senior Chinese official and trade negotiator said on Sunday, refusing to be drawn on whether the leaders of the two countries would meet at the G20 summit to bash out an agreement.

➤ Shanghai stocks ended the first session of the month on a bearish note on concerns that escalating trade tensions could increase risks of a global slowdown, and as investors were worried Beijing's stimulus measures might impact liquidity. The blue-chip CSI300 index ended up 0.1% at 3,632.01 on Monday, while the Shanghai Composite Index closed 0.3% weaker at 2,890.08 points.

In May, China and Hong Kong stocks both logged their worst monthly declines since last October as Sino-U.S. trade tensions accelerated. Last month also saw the heaviest foreign outflows via the Stock Connect linking mainland and Hong Kong, with foreign net equities sales reaching more than 50 billion yuan ($7.24 billion).

Monday's drop came after China's chief securities regulator' comments that the Sino-U.S. trade war is affecting capital markets but the impact is controllable.

China threatened on Friday to unveil an unprecedented hit-list of "unreliable" foreign firms, groups and individuals that harm the interests of Chinese companies.

China will investigate whether FedEx Corp damaged the legal rights and interests of its clients, the official Xinhua news agency said on Saturday, after Chinese telecoms giant Huawei said parcels intended for it were diverted

The United States cannot use pressure to force a trade deal on China, a senior Chinese official and trade negotiator said on Sunday, refusing to be drawn on whether the leaders of the two countries would meet at the G20 summit to bash out an agreement.

Going into June, there are still internal and external factors that could weigh on the A-share market's performance, even as the market's valuations have returned to historically low levels, investment bank China International Capital Corporation Limited (CICC) noted in report.
