GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Japan's household spending rose less than expected in February and real wages tumbled at the fastest pace in more than three years in an sign the consumer sector faces increasing challenges. • Japan's coincident indicator index improved for the first time in four months in February and the government kept its view to say the economy is at "a turning point", government data showed on Friday. • The Canadian economy unexpectedly shed 7,200 jobs in March, its first decline in seven months, Statistics Canada data showed on Friday, reinforcing market expectations that the Bank of Canada will keep interest rates unchanged next month. • German industrial output rose by 0.7 percent in February as mild weather helped a surge in construction activity but manufacturing production dipped, doing little to boost spirits in Europe's largest economy after a run of negative news. • British house price growth cooled in the first three months of 2019 in annual terms and the outlook is likely to remain subdued, given Brexit uncertainty and high property prices, mortgage lender Halifax said on Friday. • Britain's opposition Labour Party said on Friday that talks with the government on a last-ditch Brexit deal had made no progress, as EU leaders said Prime Minister Theresa May had not convinced them that they should let Britain delay its departure next week. May wrote to Brussels asking European Union leaders to postpone Britain's exit from next Friday until June 30. But they have insisted that she must first show a viable plan to secure agreement on her divorce deal in the deadlocked parliament. • U.S. and Chinese trade negotiators will continue their talks next week by video conference as they try to reach a deal to resolve a nine-month-old trade war, White House adviser Larry Kudlow said on Friday. • U.S. employment growth accelerated from a 17-month low in March as milder weather boosted hiring in sectors like construction, which could further allay fears of an abrupt slowdown in economic activity in the first quarter. • President Donald Trump said on Friday the U.S. Federal Reserve should lower interest rates and take other unconventional measures to ease pressure on an economy that he said they slowed down.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Global stocks rose to a fresh six-month high on Friday after concerns about an economic slowdown were lessened by U.S. labor market data, while optimism that a trade deal between the United States and China was drawing closer also lifted sentiment. • Better-than-expected data out of Germany, along with the U.S. jobs report, and a possibly delayed British departure from the European Union also helped boost risk appetite for European shares.
FOREX	The dollar rose on Friday after a jobs report for March showed that U.S. job gains were better than expected during the month while wage pressures were muted. Nonfarm payrolls rose by 196,000 jobs last month. Data for February was revised modestly up to show payrolls rising by 33,000 jobs instead of the previously reported 20,000. February job gains were the smallest since September 2017. Wage gains also slowed in March and more people dropped out of the labor force. Average hourly earnings increased by four cents, or 0.1 percent in March after jumping 0.4 percent in February. Reaction in the dollar was relatively muted, and the greenback initially fell before moving into positive territory. The dollar index against a basket of six major currencies was last up 0.10% on the day at 97.402. Investors are focused on data for further clues about Federal Reserve policy after the U.S. central bank stunned markets in March by abandoning projections for any interest rate hikes this year. President Donald Trump said on Friday the Fed should lower interest rates and take other

	unconventional measures to ease pressure on an economy that he said they slowed down. Trade talks between the U.S. and China are also in focus as investors hope an agreement may remove some global headwinds to growth. Trump said on Thursday the countries were close to a deal that could be announced within four weeks, while warning Beijing that it would be difficult to allow trade to continue without a pact. Sterling weakened on Friday as doubts swirled over British Prime Minister Theresa May's attempt to further delay Brexit.
GOLD	Gold eased on Friday as Wall Street gained on data pointing to a rebound in jobs growth in the United States, but bullion's losses were limited by a simultaneous slowdown in wage growth. Spot gold slipped 0.1 percent to $1,290.75 per ounce by 1:40 pm EDT (1740 GMT). Prices touched their lowest since Jan. 25 at $1,280.59 on Thursday. The metal was down about 0.1 percent so far for the week. U.S. gold futures settled 0.1 percent higher at $1,295.6 an ounce. U.S. employment growth accelerated from a 17-month low in March as milder weather boosted activity in sectors like construction, which could further allay fears of a sharp slowdown in economic growth in the first quarter, driving early gains on Wall Street. Gold dipped as much as 0.6 percent at one point following the release of the report. However, bullion pared some of its losses as investors also took stock of other details from the report, which showed slower wage increases in March and worsening worker shortages. Also weighing on bullion was improved risk sentiment driven by optimism surrounding a U.S.-China trade deal, which kept the dollar supported. Holdings in the world's largest gold-backed exchange-traded fund, SPDR Gold Trust, were at their lowest since Dec. 10. Spot platinum dipped 0.3 percent to $895, having earlier touched its highest since mid-June last year at $907.63. The metal is up about 5.7 percent this week, the most since January 2017. The spread between palladium and platinum has declined nearly 40 percent to around $451 an ounce from a record $753 in mid-March. Both metals are primarily consumed by automakers for catalytic converter manufacturing. Palladium rose 0.4 percent to $1,372.01 an ounce, but was on course for a second weekly fall. Silver fell 0.6 percent to $15.06 per ounce, having fallen to its lowest since the end of December in the previous session.
OIL	Oil prices climbed more than 1 percent on Friday as strong U.S. employment data tempered fears that global crude demand might weaken, and on expectations that an escalating conflict in Libya could tighten oil supplies. Brent crude futures rose 72 cents to $70.12 a barrel, or 1.0 percent, by 1:45 p.m. EDT (1745 GMT), on track for its second straight weekly gain. The session high of $70.41 was the highest since Nov. 12. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude rose 97 cents, or 1.6 percent, to $63.07 a barrel, after hitting $63.18, the highest since Nov. 7. WTI was headed for its fifth consecutive weekly rise. The U.S. Labor Department report showed employment growth accelerated from a 17-month low in March. Military action in Libya, which could disrupt supply from the OPEC member, also supported prices. On Thursday, Eastern Libyan commander Khalifa Haftar ordered his troops to march on Tripoli, escalating a conflict with the internationally recognized government. Crude futures also received a boost from news of a potential slowdown in crude production out of Venezuela, as U.S. sanctions and energy blackouts hit the OPEC nation's oil industry. Venezuelan state-owned oil company PDVSA expects its crude upgraders to operate well below capacity this month, according to industry sources and documents seen by Reuters. Venezuela depends on the upgraders to convert the extra-heavy crude oil produced in the Orinoco Belt into exportable grades usable in overseas refineries. U.S. energy companies this week increased the number of oil drilling rigs for first time in

seven weeks, General Electric Co's Baker Hughes energy services firm said in its report on Friday. Companies added 15 oil rigs in the week to April 5.

While crude production has soared in the United States to a record 12.2 million barrels per day, according to government data released on Tuesday, some signs point to a near-term easing of growth.

Lingering concerns over U.S.-China trade relations limited oil price gains. The United States and China, the world's two biggest oil consumers, could be close to ending their trade dispute, though some hurdles remain.
