GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • New Zealand's unemployment rate picked up more than expected in the fourth quarter, moving off a decade low and sparking a sharp drop in the currency in a sign markets expect a more cautious turn in policy from the central bank when it meets next week. • The Bank of England said Britain faces its weakest economic growth in a decade this year as uncertainty over Brexit mounts and the global economy slows, but stuck to its message that interest rates will rise if an EU divorce deal is done. • The European Commission sharply cut on Thursday its forecasts for euro zone economic growth this year and next because it expects the bloc's largest countries to be held back by global trade tensions and an array of domestic challenges. • The number of Americans filing applications for unemployment benefits dropped from near a 1-1/2-year high last week, pointing to sustained labor market strength that should continue to underpin the economy. • German industrial output unexpectedly fell in December for the fourth consecutive month, sending another signal that growth in Europe's biggest economy is weakening. • U.S. Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said on Wednesday that he and other U.S. officials will travel to Beijing next week for trade talks, aiming to clinch a deal to avert a March 2 increase in U.S. tariffs on Chinese goods.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stocks pulled back sharply around the world on Thursday on fears of a global growth slowdown spreading to Europe and worry about the chances for a resolution of U.S.-China trade tensions anytime soon, while the U.S. dollar strengthened for a sixth session against a basket of currencies. • On Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 220.77 points, or 0.87 percent, to 25,169.53, the S&P 500 lost 25.56 points, or 0.94 percent, to 2,706.05 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 86.93 points, or 1.18 percent, to 7,288.35.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar rose against the euro on Thursday amid growing worries about the deteriorating growth outlook for the euro zone area, but slipped against the safe-haven yen over renewed concerns over trade tensions between United States and China. The European Commission sharply cut its forecasts for euro zone economic growth this year and next because it expects the bloc's largest countries to be held back by global trade tensions and domestic challenges. The euro was 0.11 percent lower against the greenback, on pace for its fourth session of losses. It dropped earlier in the session after German industrial output unexpectedly fell in December. Global trade tensions and growing public debt are hastening a slowdown in the largest countries of the bloc, complicating the European Central Bank's plans for an interest rate hike this year and weakening the single currency. The dollar index, which tracks the greenback versus the euro, yen, British pound and three other currencies, was up 0.12 percent at 96.505, on pace for its sixth session of gains. The number of Americans filing applications for unemployment benefits dropped from near a 1-1/2-year high last week, pointing to sustained labor market strength that should continue to underpin the U.S. economy. The dollar's recent gains come despite the Federal Reserve's dovish shift on interest rates last week. The greenback weakened a little on news U.S. President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping are unlikely to meet before a March 1 deadline set by their governments to reach a trade deal. Against the yen, which tends to benefit during geopolitical or financial stress as Japan is the world's biggest creditor nation, the greenback was 0.11 percent lower.

The Australian dollar steadied on Thursday, a day after Australia's central bank's signaled a shift from its long-standing tightening bias and sent the Aussie down 1.8 percent. Sterling advanced 0.19 percent in a volatile trading session.

The pound fell sharply after the Bank of England said Britain faced its weakest economic growth in a decade due to uncertainty about Brexit, but recovered on hopes that Britain will make some progress in coming days in negotiations on its departure from the European Union.

The Canadian dollar weakened to its lowest in nearly two weeks against the greenback amid fears of a global slowdown and ahead of domestic jobs data on Friday.

GOLD

Gold prices rose on Thursday on concerns that the U.S.-China trade war may stretch beyond a March 1 deal deadline and the potential effect it could have on global growth, although gains were capped by a strengthening U.S. dollar.

Spot gold rose 0.4 percent to $1,310.90 an ounce at 2:28 pm EST (1928 GMT) after touching its lowest since Jan. 29 at $1,302.11.

U.S. gold futures settled unchanged at $1,314.20.

U.S. President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping were unlikely to meet before their countries' March 1 deadline to reach a trade agreement, U.S. officials said. The two countries had taken a 90-day hiatus in their trade war to work out a deal.

The dollar index, which tracks the greenback against major currencies, was on course for a sixth session of gains and trading close to a two-week high taking some sheen away from gold. Earlier in the session, gold gained after U.S. unemployment benefits dropped from near a 1-1/2-year high last week to 234,000, while economists polled by Reuters had forecast claims falling to 221,000.

Stocks around the world pulled back sharply on Thursday on fears of a global growth slowdown spreading to Europe and renewed worries about any near-term resolution of U.S.-China trade tensions.

Gold denominated in euros climbed to a fresh high during the day, hitting its highest since early May 2017, at 1,157.37 euros per ounce.

Among other precious metals, palladium gained 1 percent to $1,386 an ounce, silver was down 0.3 percent at $15.70 and platinum was down 1.3 percent at $793 after touching its lowest since Jan. 24.

OIL

Oil fell about 2 percent on Thursday as the market was weighed down by concerns that global demand growth would lag in the coming year.

A rebound from late December lows seemed to stall amid worries that a trade war between the U.S. and China would continue, weighing on demand. The market also contended with the possibility that oil producers would not adhere strictly to cuts agreed to last year.

Brent crude futures fell $1.06 a barrel, or 1.7 percent, to settle at $61.63.

U.S. crude futures fell $1.37 a barrel, or 2.5 percent, to settle at $52.64.

Though the United States published robust jobs data last week, global markets remain nervous after China reported the lowest annual economic growth in nearly 30 years in January. That focuses yet more attention on the outcome of U.S.-China talks to end the trade war between the world's top two economies.

The oil price also came under pressure as weekly data published by the U.S. Energy Information Administration on Wednesday showed an unwelcome increase in stocks of crude oil.

A decline in OPEC production and a squeeze on supply from Iran and Venezuela because of U.S. sanctions have led many analysts to forecast that the market will be balanced in 2019.

The oil price is showing a 20 percent gain so far this year.

Price support is provided by supply cuts led by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to tighten the market.

Saudi Arabia, the world's top oil exporter, told OPEC it had pumped 10.24 million barrels per day (bpd) in January, two OPEC sources told Reuters, a deeper cut than targeted in the supply pact. The kingdom pumped 10.643 million bpd in December.

U.S. sanctions against Venezuela's oil industry are expected to freeze sales proceeds of Venezuelan crude exports to the United States.
