Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ Hong Kong shares ended firmer on Monday, closing at a more than nine-month peak as a jump in U.S. payrolls and hints of more stimulus in China buoyed investor sentiment, while high oil prices lifted energy stocks. At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was up 140.83 points or 0.47 percent at 30,077.15, its highest close since June 15, 2018. The Hang Seng China Enterprises index rose 0.87 percent to 11,793.65.

The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares rose 1.6 percent as oil prices rose to their highest level since November 2018.

The IT sector ended 0.71 percent higher, while the financial sector closed 0.58 percent higher and the property sector rose 0.13 percent.

In an effort to support the economy, China will step up its policy of targeted cuts to banks' required reserve ratios to encourage financing for small and medium-sized businesses that play a key role in economic growth.

The top gainer on the Hang Seng was Sino Biopharmaceutical Ltd, which closed 7.11 percent firmer, while the biggest loser was China Unicom Hong Kong Ltd, which ended 3.01 percent down.

China's main Shanghai Composite index closed down 0.05 percent at 3,244.81 points, while the blue-chip CSI300 index ended 0.12 percent lower.

➤ Chinese shares closed weaker on Monday, retreating from gains hit in the previous week, on profit-taking and as investors seek more clarity in the U.S.-China trade negotiations, but hopes that Beijing's policy will bolster growth curbed losses.

At the close, the Shanghai Composite index was down 0.05 percent at 3,244.81. The index gained more than 5 percent last week.

The blue-chip CSI300 index ended down 0.12 percent, with its financial sector sub-index lower by 0.15 percent, the consumer staples sector up 0.86 percent, the real estate index down 0.69 percent and the healthcare sub-index closed 1.23 percent weaker.

Adding to profit-taking pressure, foreign investors were net sellers of A-shares on Monday, with Refinitiv data showing net outflows through the Northbound legs of the Shanghai-Hong Kong and Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect schemes. In an effort to support the economy, China will step up its policy of targeted cuts to banks' required reserve ratios to encourage financing for small and medium-sized businesses that play a key role in economic growth.
