GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA

Wall Street has ended down slightly, with bank stocks declining as prospects of a US interest rate cut rose and energy shares tumbled along with oil prices.

The S&P 500 energy index slid 1.4 per cent on Wednesday, the most among the 11 S&P sectors, as demand worries drove US crude prices down four per cent.

The day's losses made energy the worst-performing S&P 500 sector for the year to date.

A report from the Labor Department showed US consumer prices rose 0.1 per cent in May, in line with expectations of economists polled by Reuters, pointing to moderate inflation. This backed the case for a rate cut by the Federal Reserve.

Banking stocks, which tend to benefit from higher interest rates, dropped 1.4 per cent. The broader financial sector fell one per cent.

Still, hopes that the Fed will act to counter a slowing global economy due to the escalating trade war with China have spurred a rally in stocks this month. The S&P 500 index is up 4.6 per cent so far in June. Fed policymakers will meet on June 18-19. Markets have priced in at least two rate cuts by the end of 2019. Fed fund futures imply around an 80 per cent chance of an easing in rates as soon as July.

Investors are reducing exposure to stocks after the recent rally, and as they brace for the Fed meeting. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 43.68 points, or 0.17 per cent, to 26,004.83, the S&P 500 lost 5.88 points, or 0.2 per cent, to 2879.84 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 29.85 points, or 0.38 per cent, to 7792.72.

S&P 500 utilities, which are positively affected by falling rates, was the day's best-performing sector, rising 1.3 per cent.

Lingering worries on the trade front weighed on sentiment, a day after US President Donald Trump said he was holding up a deal with China and had no interest in moving ahead unless Beijing agrees to four or five major points.

Less than three weeks before proposed talks between the US and Chinese leaders, sources say there has been little preparation.

Nikkei

Japan's Nikkei share average fell on Wednesday, snapping a three-day winning streak, as the tough stance taken by U.S. President Donald Trump in his latest comments on trade negotiations with China fed worries of a global slowdown.

The Nikkei fell 0.4% to 21,129.72, with an immediate resistance seen at its current 100-day moving average at 21,272. The broader Topix shed 0.5% to 1,554.22. Declining shares outnumbered advancing ones 1,329 to 717.

The market's recovery over the past several sessions from multi-month lows touched earlier in June is beginning to fade, largely due to concerns over the impact of a protracted U.S.-China trade war.

Trump said on Tuesday that he was holding up a trade deal with China and had no interest in moving ahead unless Beijing agrees again to four or five "major points", without specifying what those issues were.

Indeed, Japanese companies' earnings outlook continued to deteriorate. The forward earnings per share of Topix has dropped 6.7% from its peak late last year and is now down 2.1% from a year ago.

In a rare bright spot, Japan's machinery orders, a key leading gauge of capital spending, unexpectedly rose for a third straight month in April, helped by the strength in domestic demand.

Yet that meant little in light of the overwhelming uncertainties Sino-U.S. frictions are posing to companies' long-term investment plans, particularly in the technology sector.

Electric machinery company shares were down 0.7%, underperforming the market.

Kospi

South Korea's KOSPI stock index snapped a four-day rally and fell on Wednesday as investors cautiously watched the development of U.S.-China trade talks, with worries renewing after U.S. President Donald Trump added to pressure against China. The Korean won and the benchmark bond yield fell.

President Trump said on Tuesday he was holding up a trade deal with China and had no interest in moving ahead unless Beijing agrees again to four or five "major points" that Trump did not specify.

This month's G20 summit will help push U.S.-China trade talks forward but no final agreement was expected to be reached there, U.S. Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross said on Tuesday. He added that a definitive trade deal with Beijing could not be made at the summit.

The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI fell 3.06 points or 0.14% to 2,108.75, snapping a four-session winning streak.

As it's difficult to figure out how the Sino-U.S. talks are going on, investors are taking a cautious stance, said Kim Ji-hyung, an analyst at Hanyang Securities.

South Korean shares exposed to North Korea closed firmer as U.S. President Donald Trump said he has received a letter from North Korean leader Kim Jong Un. Foreigners were net sellers of 0.3 billion won ($253,635.44) worth of shares on the main board. The won was quoted at 1,182.6 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.19% lower than its previous close at 1,180.4. In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,182.8 per U.S. dollar, down 0.4% from the previous day, while in non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,181.4 per dollar. MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan was down 0.66%, after U.S. stocks inched lower. Japanese stocks fell 0.35%.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ Hong Kong's financial markets came under pressure on Wednesday, with stocks falling and demand for cash surging, as protesters clashed with police during a mass demonstration against legislation that would allow citizens to be extradited to China. Tens of thousands of protesters had gathered peacefully in the Chinese-ruled city to protest against the extradition bill. But as tempers flared, riot police fired multiple volleys of tear gas at demonstrators who threw plastic bottles in running battles outside the city's legislature. Some businesses shut and workers walked out on strike, a rarity in Hong Kong, to support the protest. The benchmark Hang Seng Index closed 1.7% lower, having lost as much as 2% in afternoon, while Chinese companies in Hong Kong ended down 1.2%. That compared with losses of less than 0.6% in Shanghai and Asia ex-Japan. The selloff came amid broader concerns about the global economy due to fears that the Sino-U.S. trade war could be prolonged.

➤ China stocks fell on Wednesday after the previous session's rally, as weak factory inflation data and prospects of an escalation in the Sino-U.S. trade war curbed risk appetite. The blue-chip CSI300 index fell 0.8%, to 3,691.10 points, while the Shanghai Composite Index lost 0.6%, to 2,909.38 points. China's factory gate inflation slowed amid sluggish commodity demand and faltering manufacturing activity, reinforcing worries about slowing economic growth. In a sign that trade tensions could intensify, U.S. President Donald Trump on Tuesday defended the use of tariffs as part of his trade strategy while China vowed a tough response if the United States insists on escalating trade tensions. Shares of real estate companies fell on worries about the sector's health, after the city of Enshi made moves to stabilise property prices. Bucking weakness in the broader market, rare earth stocks jumped after news that China launched a survey of rare earth resources in seven regions on Monday, amid speculation that Beijing may curb exports of the materials to the United States.
