GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The mood among German investors deteriorated unexpectedly in May, a survey showed on Tuesday, as the escalating trade dispute between China and the United States clouds the growth outlook for Europe's largest economy.</li> <li>• Britain's unemployment rate fell to its lowest since the mid-1970s in early 2019 as employers hired in the run-up to the original date for Britain's EU departure, but there were signs that Brexit was beginning to weigh on the jobs boom.</li> <li>• The British government agreed on Tuesday it was "imperative" to ratify Britain's exit from the European Union before the summer break, setting out the clearest deadline so far for the embattled plan and the prime minister's possible departure.</li> <li>• Canadian home prices were unchanged in April, failing to rise for the eighth consecutive month, data showed on Tuesday.</li> <li>• U.S. import prices rose less than expected in April as increases in the cost of petroleum and food were tempered by the largest decrease in the price of capital goods in 10 years, suggesting inflation could remain tame for a while.</li> <li>• U.S. President Donald Trump on Tuesday called the trade war with China "a little squabble" and insisted talks between the world's two largest economies had not collapsed, as investors remained on guard for a further escalation of tit-for-tat tariffs.</li> </ul>
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• U.S. and European stocks regained ground on Tuesday after President Donald Trump downplayed the U.S.-China trade war as "a little squabble" a day after a spike in tensions between the world's two largest economies rattled financial markets.</li> <li>• Fears that the United States and China were spiraling into a fiercer, more protracted trade dispute that could derail the global economy have shaken investors in the past week.</li> <li>• Trump insisted trade talks with China had not collapsed, while China's Foreign Ministry spokesman said the two sides had agreed to continue pursuing relevant discussions.</li> </ul>
FOREX	The euro slid against the dollar on Tuesday after Italy's deputy prime minister said the country is ready to break European Union budget rules on debt levels if necessary to spur employment. "If we need to break some limits, like the 3% (deficit-to-GDP ratio) or 130-140% (debt-to-GDP ratio), we're ready to go ahead," Matteo Salvini, Italy's deputy prime minister, said. "Until we arrive at 5% unemployment, we will spend everything that we should and if someone in Brussels complains, that won't be our concern." Salvini's coalition partner, Luigi Di Maio, later told reporters that it was "pretty irresponsible" to create market tensions by speaking about increasing Italy's high debt level. The dollar was also buoyed as U.S. and Chinese officials said the two countries would continue to negotiate on trade. U.S. President Donald Trump insisted on Tuesday that trade talks with China had not collapsed and called the widening U.S.-China tariff war "a little squabble," even as his administration readies 25% duties on all remaining Chinese imports. Investors are also focused on whether Trump will impose tariffs on imported cars and auto parts as talks continue with the European Union and Japan. Trump received a "Section 232" investigation report in February, widely believed to have concluded that car and auto part imports pose a risk to national security. The president's 90-day deliberation period is due to end on Saturday. Sterling dipped to two-week lows as British employment data showed wage growth in the quarter ending March was lower than expected, signaling the possible start of a turbulent period for the broader economy. Concerns about Britain's exit from the European Union are also weighing on the British currency. Britain's opposition Labour Party said on Tuesday that Prime Minister Theresa May had not yet made a shift in Brexit talks and that the party was concerned a future Conservative leader could renege on any promises made by the current government.

GOLD

Gold retreated from a one-month high hit earlier on Tuesday as stock markets and the dollar took heart after the United States and China agreed to keep negotiations going to end their prolonged trade war.

Spot gold was 0.3% lower at $1,295.18 per ounce as of 1:49 p.m. ET (1749 GMT), after hitting $1,303.26 earlier in the session, its highest since April 11. U.S. gold futures settled down 0.4% at 1,296.3.

The dollar index was up about 0.2% after falling to near a one-month low in the previous session. U.S. stocks climbed following optimistic comments from Washington and Beijing.

U.S. President Donald Trump said on Tuesday that trade talks with China have not collapsed and called the widening U.S.-China tariff war "a little squabble," even as his administration readies 25% duties on all remaining Chinese imports.

Gold climbed 1.1% on Monday, marking its biggest one-day percentage rise since Feb. 19, after China announced it would impose higher tariffs on a range of U.S. goods, which followed Washington's decision last week to hike levies on $200 billion in Chinese imports.

Investors were also keeping tabs on escalating tensions between the United States and Iran after Saudi Arabia said two of its oil tankers were among those attacked off the coast of the United Arab Emirates.

A rise in investor interest in bullion was also evident after holdings of SPDR Gold Trust, the world's largest gold-backed exchange-traded fund, rose 0.44% on Monday, its biggest one-day rise in nearly two months.

Among other precious metals, silver was up 0.1% at $14.78 per ounce. Platinum rose 0.4% to $856.66 an ounce, while palladium gained 1.4% to $1,340.52.

OIL

Oil prices rose over 1% on Tuesday after top exporter Saudi Arabia said explosive-laden drones launched by a Yemeni-armed movement aligned to Iran had attacked facilities belonging to state oil company Aramco.

That move higher comes as the market waits for a report from the American Petroleum Institute (API), an industry group, which is expected to show U.S. crude stockpiles fell by 800,000 barrels last week, their second decline in a row, according to analysts in a Reuters poll.

The poll was conducted ahead of weekly reports from API at 4:30 p.m. EDT (2030 GMT) on Tuesday and the U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA) at 10:30 a.m. EDT on Wednesday.

Brent futures gained $1.01, or 1.4 percent, to settle at $71.24 a barrel, while U.S. West Texas Intermediate crude gained 74 cents, or 1.2 percent, to $61.78.

That was the highest settle for Brent since May 6 and WTI since May 8 and caused the closing premium of Brent over WTI to rise to a nine-week high.

Saudi Arabia said armed drones had struck two oil pumping stations in the kingdom on Tuesday in what it called a "cowardly" act of terrorism two days after Saudi oil tankers were sabotaged off the coast of the United Arab Emirates.

U.S. national security agencies said they believe proxies sympathetic to or working for Iran may have been responsible for the tanker attacks rather than Iranian forces themselves. Iranian officials denied responsibility.

Tehran has been embroiled in an escalating war of words with the United States over stricter U.S. sanctions, which have cut its oil exports and tightened global supply.

A fifth of global oil consumption passes through the Strait of Hormuz from Middle East crude producers to global markets.

The Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries said on Tuesday that world demand for its oil would be higher than expected this year as supply growth from rivals including U.S. shale producers slows, pointing to a tighter market if the exporter group refrains from raising output.

U.S. oil output from seven major shale formations, however, is expected to rise to a fresh peak of about 8.5 million barrels per day in June, the U.S. Energy Information Administration said in a report on Monday.

The market was also holding out some hope for U.S.-China trade talks as both sides expressed positive sentiments, which may signal the negotiations are not yet dead.

The talks appeared headed towards success last week but have largely unravelled over U.S. accusations that Beijing sought vast, last-minute changes. China on Monday ignored a warning from U.S. President Donald Trump and moved to impose higher tariffs on a range of U.S. goods including liquefied natural gas (LNG).
