

Daily Outlook

GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Shares of technology companies helped lift Wall Street on Tuesday after the United States temporarily eased curbs on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd, alleviating investor concerns about pressure on future corporate results in the sector. U.S. President Donald Trump added Huawei to a trade blacklist last week, leading several companies to suspend business with the world's largest telecom equipment maker, a move that could weigh on their sales. Chipmakers, many of which sell to Huawei, bore the brunt of Monday's sell-off. But late on Monday, the United States granted the Chinese telecoms equipment maker a license to buy U.S. goods until Aug. 19. The development offered a reprieve to shares of chipmakers, with the Philadelphia Semiconductor Index gaining 2.1% to end a three-day slump. Shares of Huawei suppliers such as Intel Corp, Qualcomm Inc, Xilinx Inc and Broadcom Inc rose between 1% and 4.6%. Technology shares rose 1.2% to add the most gains to the S&amp;P 500 among the benchmark index's major sectors. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 197.43 points, or 0.77%, to 25,877.33, the S&amp;P 500 gained 24.13 points, or 0.85%, to 2,864.36 and the Nasdaq Composite added 83.35 points, or 1.08%, to 7,785.72. Even with Tuesday's gains, the S&amp;P 500 is still on track to post its first monthly decline of the year. The index is now 3% away from its all-time high on May 1 as it has been pressured by mounting concerns about a prolonged U.S.-China trade war.
Nikkei	Japan's Nikkei slipped on Tuesday as Washington's blacklisting of Huawei took a heavy toll on suppliers to the Chinese telecoms equipment maker, but the downside was limited after the United States temporarily eased trade restrictions. The Nikkei ended 0.1% lower at 21,272.45. It briefly turned positive after news the U.S. government had temporarily eased trade restrictions imposed last week on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd Since the White House added Huawei to a trade blacklist last week, several global companies have suspended business with the world's largest telecoms equipment maker. The electric machinery sector tumbled 1%, underperforming the overall market. Murata Manufacturing shed 1.5%, TDK Corp declined 0.9%, while Tokyo Electron slumped 1.9%, Taiyo Yuden slid 0.6% and Hitachi High-Technologies dropped 1.7%. Mizuho Securities estimates that sales to Huawei account for about 6-8% at these suppliers. Other cyclical stocks also lost ground, with shippers Mitsui OSK Lines down sharply by 4% and Kawasaki Kisen also stumbling 4.1%. SoftBank Group Corp, which has a stake in Sprint Corp, soared 3.5% after news that T-Mobile US Inc's $26 billion acquisition of rival Sprint appeared to win the support of a majority of the Federal Communications Commission on Monday.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI stock index ended firmer on Tuesday as foreigners turned net buyers, snapping eight sessions of net selling, with gains in heavyweight Samsung Electronics underpinning the benchmark. The Korean won strengthened, while bond yield dropped. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI closed up 5.54 points, or 0.27%, at 2,061.25 points. Foreigners were net buyers of 74.9 billion won ($62.74 million) worth of shares on the main board, marking their first net buying since May 8. Shares of Samsung Electronics closed 2.7% higher after it rose over 4% in early trading on expectation that U.S. regulations on Huawei Technologies could help the South Korean tech giant. Loose global liquidity conditions and weak inflationary pressure in South Korea should allow the Bank of Korea room to consider easing monetary policy, credit ratings agency Moody's Investors Service said. The won was quoted at 1,194.0 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.02% higher than its previous close at 1,194.2. In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,194.2 per U.S. dollar, unchanged from the previous session, while in one-year non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,193.0 per dollar.
Hang Seng &amp; Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong's Hang Seng index on Tuesday ended at its lowest close in nearly 16 weeks as investors worried about the risk of escalating trade tensions between Washington and Beijing despite a temporary easing of restrictions China's Huawei. At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was down 130.37 points, or 0.47%, at 27,657.24, its lowest close since Jan. 30. The Hang Seng China Enterprises index eked out a 0.01% gain to end at 10,634.62. Washington on Monday temporarily eased trade restrictions imposed last week on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd in an attempt to minimise disruption for its customers. But Huawei's founder, Ren Zhengfei, dismissed the move and said the tech firm had prepared for U.S. action.

The easing of restrictions and Ren's comments boosted some Huawei suppliers in mainland markets, but failed to overcome investor concerns in Hong Kong. A sub-index tracking IT firms ended down 0.2%. The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares dipped 0.9%, the financial sector ended 0.34% lower and the property sector dipped 1.02%.

A visit by Chinese President Xi Jinping to a rare-earths producer in Southern China sparked a massive surge in the price of another rare-earths firm, Hong Kong-listed China Rare Earth Holdings Ltd, amid speculation that the materials might be used as countermeasures in the Sino-U.S. trade spat. China Rare Earth surged over two-fold to its highest close since August 2015.

➤ Chinese shares finished higher on Tuesday as investors took heart from the temporary easing of U.S. trade restrictions on Chinese telecoms firm Huawei.

At the close, the Shanghai Composite index was up 1.23% at 2,905.97. The blue-chip CSI300 index ended 1.35% higher.

Washington on Monday temporarily eased trade restrictions imposed last week on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd in an attempt to minimise disruption for its customers. But Huawei's founder, Ren Zhengfei, dismissed the move and said that the tech firm had prepared for U.S. action.

The easing of restrictions and Ren's comments boosted Huawei suppliers and helped to lift broader market sentiment. A CSI sub-index tracking information technology stocks gained 2.37%, outperforming the broader market.

Companies in the rare earths sector surged amid speculation that the materials might be used as countermeasures in the Sino-U.S. trade spat, after Chinese President Xi Jinping visited JI Mag Rare-Earth Co Ltd, a producer in southern China, on Monday. JI Mag Rare-Earth jumped by the daily 10% limit on Tuesday, leading gains across the sector.

Financial firms gained 0.88%, the consumer staples sector rose 1.01%, real estate companies ended up 0.88% and healthcare firms added 1.45%.
