GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Profits for China's industrial firms shrank in April as slowing manufacturing activity halted the previous month's surge, putting more pressure on policymakers to step up support for an economy hit by a bitter trade war with the United States. • Bank of Japan Governor Haruhiko Kuroda said on Monday the global economic outlook is highly uncertain, and there are downside risks due to trade friction, China's slowing economy and Britain's negotiations to leave the European Union. • U.S. President Donald Trump pressed Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Monday to even out a trade imbalance with the United States and said he was happy with how things were going with North Korea despite its recent missile and rocket launches. • Australian home prices saw a tantalising hint of stability last week as the hard-hit market drew support from the prospect of lower mortgage rates and a continuation of tax breaks for property investing. • Britain's two main parties set the stage on Monday for a battle over a no-deal Brexit, hoping to win back voters who abandoned them for a new movement led by eurosceptic Nigel Farage and other smaller parties in European elections.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • European shares climbed on Monday as investors snapped up automaker stocks following confirmation of merger talks between Fiat Chrysler and Renault, and after pro-EU parties kept a firm grip on power in elections to the European Parliament. • Markets were also buoyed by provisional results from the EU elections that showed liberals and Greens matching a surge by eurosceptic parties, which took a quarter of seats but failed to dramatically alter the balance of power in parliament. • Investors had been worried about eurosceptic parties gaining a 30% share of seats -- the level at which they could seriously disrupt European governance and the region's ability to show unity in addressing key concerns like a global trade war.
FOREX	The euro struggled to cling on to gains on Monday as investor relief at limited success for eurosceptic parties in European parliamentary elections was offset by a decline in the share of seats held by the biggest blocs. Centre-right and centre-left blocs lost their shared majority, but surges by the Greens and liberals meant parties committed to strengthening the union held on to two thirds of seats, official projections showed. The single currency initially rose as high as $1.1215, off two-year lows of $1.1105 touched on Thursday. But it later fell to stand 0.1% down at $1.1197 in subdued trading because of market holidays in London and New York. The euro did hold on to gains against the Swiss franc and was last up 0.3% at 1.1256 francs. The election results dented the hopes of anti-immigration, anti-Brussels parties, including those in France and Italy, despite topping the polls in their respective countries. The dollar index rose 0.1% to 97.705. The U.S. currency rose 0.1% against the Japanese yen to 109.45 yen, buoyed by bargain-hunting Japanese investors. Despite Monday's gains, the dollar is not far from the three-month low of 109.02 yen touched two weeks ago amid escalating tensions between Washington and Beijing over trade and technology. The dollar's strength was also capped after U.S. President Donald Trump used his Tokyo visit to press Japan to take measures to reduce its trade surplus with the United States. The pound slipped as low as $1.2673, retreating after early gains. The British currency bounced on Friday after Prime Minister Theresa May set out a date for her departure, but sterling remains near 4-1/2 month lows. The prospect of a "no-deal" Brexit is fast becoming the defining issue of the race to succeed May, keeping the pound under pressure. China's onshore and offshore yuan strengthened to a 1-1/2 week high, buoyed by a senior official's warning not to bet against the currency.
GOLD	Gold hit a more than one-week peak on Monday as trade tensions between the United States and China lifted appetite for assets seen as a haven from risk, while weak U.S. economic data boosted hopes for a rate cut from the Federal Reserve.

Spot gold inched up 0.1% to $1,285.56 per ounce by 1147 GMT. The metal touched $1,287.32 earlier in the session, its highest since May 17. U.S. gold futures were 0.1% higher at $1,285.30 an ounce.

U.S. President Donald Trump said on Monday he was "not yet ready" to make a deal with China, hinting that the world's biggest economies are far from a trade agreement.

China on Friday denounced U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo for fabricating rumours after he said the chief executive of China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd was lying about his company's ties to the Beijing government.

Weak manufacturing activity data coupled with a dip in new orders for U.S.-made capital goods last week ignited worries that the trade conflict may hurt the world's largest economy, lifting investor expectations for a U.S. rate cut. Over the weekend, Trump reiterated a complaint that the Fed's policies had kept U.S. economic growth from reaching its full potential.

Investors also eyed European Parliament elections, where a two-party "grand coalition" of the conservative European People's Party (EPP) and the Socialists (S&D) lost their combined majority after a surge in support for liberals, the Greens and eurosceptic nationalists.

Meanwhile, hedge funds and money managers sharply reduced their net long positions in COMEX gold in the week to May 21, the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) said on Friday.

Among other precious metals, silver was up 0.2% at $14.59 per ounce. Platinum rose 0.4% to $805.47 an ounce and palladium fell 0.6% to $1,327.26.

OIL

Oil rose to about $69 a barrel on Monday, supported by Middle East tensions and OPEC-led supply cuts, though concern over the U.S.-China trade dispute and global economy capped gains.

Supply cuts - both voluntary by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and allies, plus those resulting from U.S. sanctions - have helped Brent crude, the global benchmark, rise by about 29 percent this year.

Brent was up 33 cents at $69.02 a barrel by 1334 GMT, having fallen by about 4.5% last week. U.S. West Texas Intermediate crude was down 30 cents at $58.33.

Both crude contracts registered their biggest weekly price declines of the year last week. Public holidays in the United States and Britain on Monday limited participation, keeping volumes low.

Tension between the United States and Iran, with Washington's announcement on Friday that it would deploy more troops to the Middle East, is supporting the market but some analysts said its impact could be limited.

Nonetheless, concern about the global economy weighed. Figures on Monday showed that profits for Chinese industrial companies shrank in April while new orders for U.S.-made capital goods fell more than expected.

Money managers cut their net long U.S. crude futures and options positions - bets on rising prices - in the week to May 21, the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) said on Friday.

In addition to the OPEC-led supply cuts, U.S. sanctions on OPEC members Iran and Venezuela have curbed their crude exports, reducing supplies further.

In comments suggesting OPEC isn't in a rush to ease supply restraint ahead of a mid-year meeting to review policy, Kuwait's oil minister said the market was expected to be in balance towards the end of 2019.

Brent's price structure remains in backwardation, with prices for prompt delivery higher than those for future dispatch, suggesting a tight balance between supply and demand.
