GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • German consumer morale cooled slightly heading into June to hit its lowest level in more than two years as shoppers became less willing to buy and more downbeat about the growth outlook of Europe's largest economy, a survey showed on Tuesday. • British banks last month approved the greatest number of mortgages since February 2017, adding to signs that the housing market may be over the worst of its pre-Brexit slowdown, a survey showed on Tuesday. • Household lending growth hit a post-crisis high last month while corporate lending expanded at its best rate this year, European Central Bank data showed on Tuesday, easing fears that banks are shutting off credit amid a growth slowdown. • Consumer confidence jumped in May as households grew more upbeat about the labor market, suggesting the economy remained on solid ground despite signs that activity was slowing after being temporarily boosted by exports and a build-up of inventories. • Italian Deputy Prime Minister Matteo Salvini called on Tuesday for a new role for the European Central Bank, which should "guarantee" government debt in order to keep bond yields low.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Early gains in benchmark U.S. indexes faded and global stock markets retreated Tuesday as concerns about Italy's budget and the fate of U.S.-China trade talks continued to weigh on investor sentiment, pushing safe haven U.S. Treasury yields to their lowest levels since October 2017. • Markets had been cheered by limited gains for nationalists in the EU elections, though wins for eurosceptic parties in Italy, France, Poland and would-be ex-member Britain, as well as snap elections in Greece and political turmoil in Austria, curbed risk appetite.
FOREX	The dollar edged higher against a basket of currencies on Tuesday, lifted by trade and political worries and a strong rise in U.S. consumer confidence, even as longer-dated U.S. bond yields dropped to 19-month lows. The euro slipped as investors were relieved that pro-Europe parties won a majority of European parliamentary seats, but they remained uneasy about the future of the economic bloc as eurosceptic and right-wing parties gained seats. Currency trading remained light even as U.S. and U.K.-based traders returned from holidays. The greenback strengthened further after the Conference Board said its gauge on U.S. consumer confidence rose to 134.1 in May, the strongest since November. Analysts had forecast a reading of 130.00. In late U.S. trading, an index that tracks the greenback against the euro, yen, sterling and three other currencies was 0.19% higher at 97.919. The dollar index reached a two-year peak at 97.908 last week. Earlier, benchmark 10-year Treasury yields fell to 2.264% after U.S. President Donald Trump signaled the United States and China were far from a trade deal. It was the lowest 10-year yield since October 2017. Investors have been loading up on safe-haven U.S. government debt due to trade worries and political uncertainty. Italian Deputy Prime Minister Matteo Salvini, whose far-right League triumphed in European elections on Sunday, said the European Commission could fine Italy 3 billion euros for breaking EU debt and deficit rules, a comment that weighed on the single currency. The euro has recovered, holding steady at $1.1169 and 122.285 yen. The euro hit a near 23-month low of $1.11055 last week. European leaders now meet in Brussels to begin the process of filling a number of top EU posts, from the head of the European Commission to the European Central Bank. The yen was little changed at 109.475 per dollar as U.S. President Donald Trump said on Monday he expected Japan and the United States to announce a trade agreement "probably in August."
GOLD	Gold on Tuesday slipped from the previous session's one-week peak, pulled down by a firm dollar as the currency was the preferred safe-haven amid uncertainty over U.S.-China trade

	tensions. Spot gold fell 0.5% to $1,278.77 per ounce by 11:37 a.m. EDT (1537 GMT), having touched its highest since May 17 at $1,287.32 in the previous session. U.S. gold futures were 0.4% lower at $1,278.1 an ounce. The dollar rose 0.3% against a basket of other leading currencies, supported by trade and political worries and a strong rise in U.S. consumer confidence. U.S. President Donald Trump said on Monday at a news conference with Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe that he was "not ready to make a deal with China," denting hopes of a trade agreement between the world's biggest economies. The dollar has also benefited from a slide in the euro, driven lower by political risks in Europe following last week's European Union parliamentary elections, which showed a polarization of the 28-member bloc. Further weighing on the bullion prices was a firm U.S. equities market propped up by the technology sector. The longs that were bought during the past couple of days are now being sold back following the break below $1,292.6 and $1,286, Hansen added. Hedge funds and money managers sharply reduced their net long positions in COMEX gold in the week to May 21, the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission said on Friday. Among other precious metals, silver was down 1.8% at $14.33 per ounce. Palladium climbed 0.4% to $1,341.56 per ounce, after hitting its highest since May 15 at $1,349. Platinum fell 1.3% to $795.96.
OIL	U.S. crude futures gained almost 1% on Tuesday after flooding throughout the Midwest constrained crude flow from the main U.S. storage hub in Cushing, Oklahoma. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) futures settled at $59.14 a barrel, up 51 cents, or 0.9%, from its close on Friday before the long Memorial Day holiday weekend. Flooded areas of Arkansas and Oklahoma were bracing for more rain that will feed the already swollen Arkansas River, forecasters said on Tuesday. Up to 19 inches (48 cm) of rain have fallen so far in parts of Oklahoma over the month of May, the National Weather Service said, with more on the way. Meanwhile, Brent crude futures settled flat at $70.11 a barrel, after repeatedly veering above and below the $70-mark. Prices had been caught between fears of slowed economic growth and expectations that the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and its allies will extend their six-month deal to curb production. OPEC and its allies including Russia, known as OPEC+, are due to meet over June 25-26 to discuss output policy, but it remains unclear whether their production pact will be extended. Brent futures last week registered a decline of 4.5% and WTI slid by 6.4% for its biggest weekly loss since December. Last week's oil-price drop came after the government reported U.S. crude oil inventories have risen to 476.8 million barrels, their highest since July 2017. Weekly inventory data this week has been delayed a day due to Monday's Memorial Day holiday. However, globally supplies have tightened because of the OPEC+ cuts so far this year, with political tensions in the Middle East adding to the upward pressure on prices. U.S. sanctions have also largely taken Iranian and Venezuelan crude out of global markets.
